

Christ's Church of the Ascension in Paradise Valley, AZ and the Sudanese Episcopal Church in Phoenix are partnering to build a multi-purpose building in South Sudan which will be used for providing education and training for returning refugees. The newest country in the world, South Sudan achieved independence this past summer. Many political forces are struggling for control, creating instability and a potential for danger. However, we believe that God may be directing us to manage this project. Chris is traveling to South Sudan in early December to perform a site evaluation, gather information for the building plans, and meet with government officials.

The Pastor's Training School is close to completion, but much money has been required for unplanned security features due to the robbery in July (iron barred windows and doors, 8-foot-high walls, a 24/7 watchman and security lighting). Our friends Steve and Sandi Youngren at Compassion Connection are sharing their need and praying for an additional $25,000 to finish this phase of the building. You can be a part at compassionconnection.net. We continue to assist these friends and our Ecuadorian architect as we work toward a January 2012 finish.

It is said that a person cannot walk away from their own story. There are no short cuts, no alternate routes. God has entrusted our family with a story that has many beautiful chapters. Our most recent chapter, however, is one we would not have scripted. We don't choose pain, and there is still pain. We don't choose uncertainty, and there is still much of that. Even as we process with our young son difficult truths like God's sovereignty and why He allows evil in the world, our faith has grown roots deeper still and we have experienced His extravagant love.

Fuel the Mission=God+you+us. You have not chosen an easier path and neither will we. We are already seeing beauty arise from the ashes. A couple of new projects are quickly taking shape, and we are moving forward with great hope for the future. What a privilege to work alongside you for our King.

India

Paul and Molly with In Touch Mission International have adopted 19 young girls in Chennai, India, who they helped rescue from infanticide. We are working closely with them on a new girls' home and ministry campus which will house up to 150 girls. The initial floor plans were completed by Jim Klein Architecture in Phoenix. Chris is traveling to Chennai for a site evaluation in just a few weeks.
